

How can student development and critical theories inform our work with international students?

What units, departments and organizations can you work with on campus to support international students' holistic needs and intersectional identities?

What are gaps in your knowledge that you want to learn more about so as to better prepare international students to thrive and succeed?