Question #1

From your perspective, what are some of the most salient conversations, opportunities, and challenges facing black communities within your local context?

Question #2

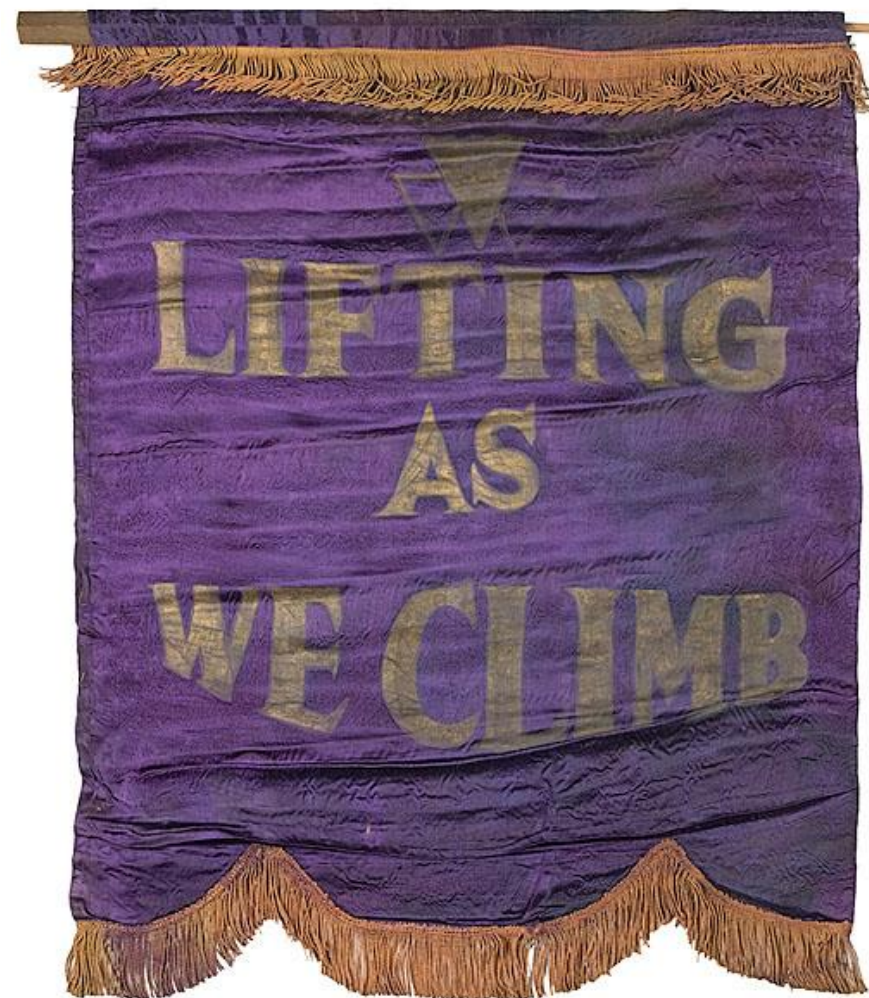

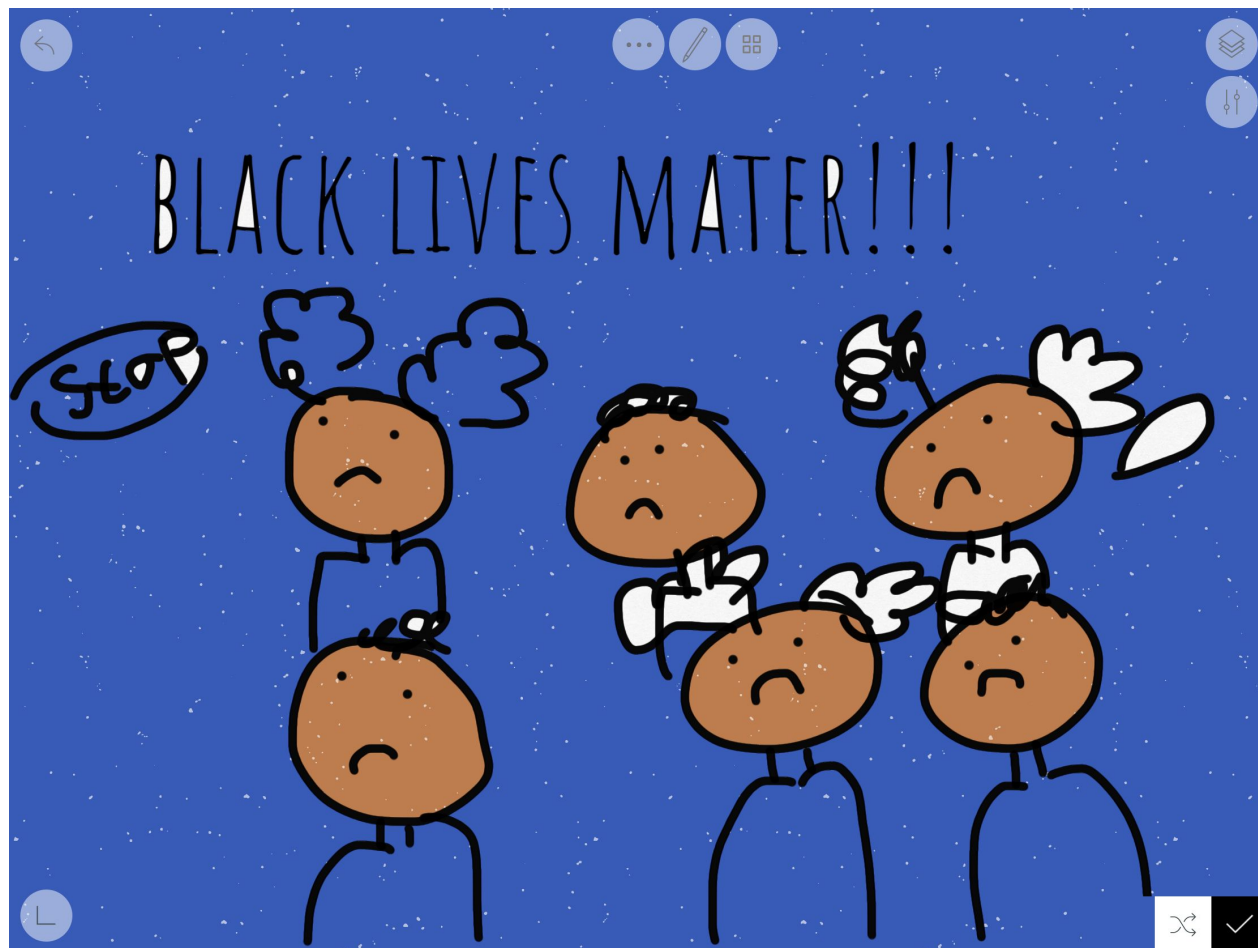

What opportunities exist for visiting international students, however that can be defined in your context, to learn about the local Black experience and why is this important?

Question #3

As a community of global educators committed to equity and social justice, how can we -- individually and collectively -- support and reinforce each other's work across distance?

Question #4

Please leave us with a quote that has and continues to inspire you in your work. Why is this quote important, especially now?
