

Are there institutional or national policies impeding your work with supporting international students?
How might you address these?

What are additional gaps in your knowledge that you want to learn more about so as to prepare international students to thrive and succeed?

In what ways can you foster cross-unit collaboration at your institution or organization to support Japanese international students with better understanding US diversity?